WESTFORD — The school committee has taken the suggestion of the Trustees of Westford Academy to name the library of the new school after Zaccheus Wright, the principal founder of the school in 1792.

According to President Gordon B. Seavey of the trustees, a dedication ceremony will take place this summer, when a suitable plaque will be placed on the extensive reference and study room.

Wright was a prime mover in establishing home libraries throughout the town prior the building of the J.V. Fletcher Library. He was also the district president of the trustees and served for 16 years.
